

Honorary Membership of ASCP

The ASCP provides an Honorary Membership to people whom it considers should be recognised in such manner.

The award is granted to people who have given outstanding contributions to the concrete pavement industry in Australia, as demonstrated by contributions to design, construction, research, leadership, advocacy, and other such fields.

In order that the award retains a high level of prestige, the number of awards presented in any year will be low (eg 1 – 3). It is not a requirement that an Honorary Membership be awarded each year.

Awards will be presented at suitable ASCP events. The award consists of a medallion, a framed certificate, and complimentary Life Membership of ASCP.

Nominations for the award can be made by any member (or group of members) of ASCP. Nominations close on 30 November in any year so that they can be considered by the National Executive at its December meeting. Awards will be presented at a suitable ASCP event early the following year.

Nominations are to be made using the attached form.

Nominations can be made by any member of ASCP (or group of members collectively).

Nominations close on 30 November in any year for awards to be granted early in the following year.

Criteria

The award is granted to people who have given outstanding contributions to the concrete pavement industry in Australia, as demonstrated by contributions to design, construction, research, leadership, advocacy, and other such fields.

Confidentiality

A nomination may not be successful depending on the quality of the information supporting the nomination, and the number of nominations received. It is intended that only one, or a small number of awards are granted in any year.

For these reasons, and to avoid disappointment, it is preferable that a nominee not be advised that they are being nominated for this award.

A nomination which is not successful will be retained in a register of nominations for another two years during which time it will be considered again.
